To whom it may concern:

Ed Sheldon was an excellent student in our Antioch program. He did superior work in his academic activities, and made a strong personal contribution to the program through his clinical and academic work at the Antioch Counseling Center.

Personally, I would describe him as intelligent, ambitious, lively and energetic. He is very knowledgeable in the field of psychology, and highly articulate. He is well prepared in a variety of areas within psychology: personality, child and adolescent development, social psychology, family therapy, and applications of psychology in business.

His class presentations in graduate seminars were forceful, clear and well-organized. Ed is a very effective teacher who will do a fine job on the college level.

Sincerely yours,

Harvey Mindess, Ph.D.
Director
M.A. Program in Psychology
